Change of use to dwellings	To one or more dwellings up to 50 dwellings	£335 for each dwelling			Revised or fresh application, by the same applicant, for development of the same character or description made within 12 months of determination of the application or 12 months from the date of registration of a withdrawn application	£0
	To more than 50 dwellings	£16,565 + £100 per dwelling over 50		£250,000	Informatives:
Change of use of a building	Other than dwellings or minerals	£335		Floorspace	Floorspace is calculated externally
Display of advertisements	Relating to business on the premises	£95		Changes of use including extensions	The fee payable is the higher - either that relating to the change of use or the extension, rather than adding both fee elements together.
	Advance directional signs	£95		Mixed use development	Applications for planning permission sometimes include development which falls into more than one category. In this case, the first step should be to calculate the fee separately under each of the categories. There are then different rules, depending upon whether the proposed scheme includes housing or not. We would recommend that our detailed advice be sought in such circumstances. Mixed use applications may attract a fee which in some cases may exceed the maximum fees referred to above.
	All other advertisements	£335		Applications spanning different local authority boundaries	Where an application crosses one or more different planning authority boundaries, the fee will be 150% and is payable to the authority that contains the larger part of the application site.
Car parks, service roads or other accesses for existing use	Flat rate fee (does not include multi-storey car parks which are treated as buildings)	£170		For details of further concessions and reductions please contact Rapleys

This is intended as a summary guide to the Fee Regulations only. Reference must ultimately be made to the Town and Country Planning (Fees for Applications and Deemed Applications) Regulations 1989 as amended.
